INSURGENT TROOPS SMASH LAST BASQUE DEFENSE, CLEARING EIGHT-MILE PATH TO BELEAGURED BILBAO

HALF-BILLION CUT IN RELIEF FUNDS HELD POSSIBILITY

Chairman of House Sub-committee To Consider Relief - Deficiency Bill Predicts Reduction of F.D.R. Recommendation

WOODRUM URGES FORCING CAUTION

Senators, Representatives Are Reported To Be Still at Odds Over Method of Securing New Economy.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—An influential member of the house appropriations committee said today there was a strong possibility congress might pass a new works-relief fund to $1,000,000,000.

Representative Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, acting chairman of a subcommittee which will start hearings tomorrow on a relief-deficiency money bill, asserted:

"With congress in its present economy mood, I believe the President's figure may be cut $500,000,000."

Roosevelt recommended fund of $1,500,000,000. Congressional leaders said he resisted suggestions that $500,000,000 be lopped from the total on grounds a reduction merely would mean more money must be appropriated later.

To Compel Caution.

Even if it were necessary to provide additional funds later, Woodrum said, economies might be realized by compelling the Works Progress Administration to spend cautiously on a basis of a billion dollars rather than a billion and a half.

Sentiment for a $500,000,000 reduction has been evidenced in some senate quarters.

The house committee will open hearings tomorrow, Woodrum said, with a discussion of a proposal to continue the Public Works Administration. On Wednesday, the subcommittee expects to take up the $1,500,000,000 works-relief recommendation.

Woodrum, who has been arguing for economy and against "economy hysteria," said the proper way of approaching a reduction in public expenditures is by having individual items considered by the appropriations committee.

Appropriation bills passed by the house already have been trimmed more than $100,000,000 under presidential recommendations, he noted.

Request for Requested.

The Virginian yesterday asked the heads of 32 independent federal establishments to resurvey money requirements for the next fiscal year and help congress cut at least 10 per cent from their total requests.

The week end brought no indication of agreement between house and senate leaders over the method proposed economy.

Senate Majority Leader Robinson held to his support of a proposal to make a horizontal cut of 10 per cent in all appropriations. The house Democratic leader, Representative Rayburn, of Texas, favored legislation to allow the President to impound 15 per cent of all appropriations, releasing the money at his discretion.

McGill Awarded Fellowship For Economic Study Abroad

Constitution Writer Is One of 19 Southerners Given High Honor.

RALPH MCGILL

Ralph McGill, sports editor of the Constitution and noted political commentator and feature writer, has been awarded a fellowship by the Julius Rosenwald Fund for six months' study in Europe.

Known for his analysis and written comment on the forces which influence society, McGill has been chosen to review and report on the part the press has played in Ireland and on the continent in solving agricultural and political problems, and the attitude of the press toward those problems.

McGill, nationally known as a writer and authority on sports, has done equally outstanding work in political and feature writing for The Constitution. Among his most notable writings in the field of political comment were two series of articles written for the Constitution on Cuban developments.

Syndicated Over Nation.

The first series, written while McGill was visiting Cuba in 1934, described the events leading to the revolution which ousted Gerardo Machado from the presidency and the second "liberation" of Cuba. The series, which was written especially for The Constitution, was syndicated by the North American Newspaper Alliance and was given national publication.

The second series of articles, written by McGill for The Constitution on his second visit to Cuba the following year, gave a firsthand commentary on the new government and included one of the first stories on Colonel Ful-

DENHARDT CHARGE Hinges on Judge

Defense Plans Argument Against Possibility of Manslaughter Verdict.

NEW CASTLE, Ky., May 2.—(AP)—Attorneys for Brigadier General Henry H. Denhardt said today they would fight any move by the commonwealth to have Circuit Judge Marshall include manslaughter in his charge to the jury tomorrow.

Later yesterday Commonwealth's Attorney Kinsolving Jr. asked the judge to include manslaughter.

The defense objected and the judge said he would hear further arguments on the point tomorrow.

Only the judge's charge and closing arguments remain before the jury will retire to decide the fate of the man the commonwealth says killed pretty Verna Garr Taylor.

Rodes K. Myers, of defense counsel, said today "It is either murder or acquittal."

Closing arguments are expected to occupy at least a day and a half. Judge Marshall said he would not limit closing speeches.

Much of the testimony of the last witnesses yesterday, before both sides rested, revolved about a cut on the general's finger, which he said he suffered while changing a tire the day Mrs. Taylor was fatally shot. Several defense witnesses stated they saw the cut the day after Mrs. Taylor's death and Dr. A. J. McCormack, state health commissioner, told of looking at it and treating it.

Coroner D. L. Ricketts, on rebuttal, said he did not see any

Rogers Rescues Connie Boswell From Back-Stage Theater Fire

Buddy' Beats Out Flames Consuming Singer's Couch.

LOS ANGELES, May 2.—(UP)—Charles (Buddy) Rogers, actor and band leader, saved Connie Boswell, stage and radio singer, from possible severe burns tonight when he beat out flames consuming the cot on which she was sleeping between performances in the downtown Paramount theater.

Neither Miss Boswell nor Roger was burned.

After finishing her act, the partially crippled singer retired to her upstairs dressing room. She was taking a nap when she suddenly awoke to find the cot smoldering.

Her screams brought Rogers, who beat out the fire.

It was believed a match or cigarette stub started the blaze.

Buddy Rogers is engaged to marry Mary Pickford, erstwhile "America's sweetheart."

STATE DEPARTMENT MOVES TO ENFORCE STRICT NEUTRALITY

Office of Arms and Munitions Control Given Administration.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(P)—The State Department set out today immediately to enforce new and more stringent provisions of the neutrality law against belliegars in the Spanish civil war.

The new act, broadening restrictions against trade with nations at war and granting the President discretionary power in administering neutrality policies, was signed by President Roosevelt last night on board a destroyer.

The President proclaimed the law effective June 1, made some of its provisions effective against Spain immediately.

The new law will be administered by the State Department's office of arms and munitions control, headed by Joseph C. Green, which administered the temporary act expiring last night.

When the new law goes into effect it will prohibit the export of arms, ammunition or implements of war to two or more nations at war, to a nation engaged in civil war, or to neutral nations for trans-shipment to the belligerents. The list of war supplies prohibited is based on the list proclaimed April 10, 1936, but also contains new items.

The President is empowered to prohibit American vessels from carrying any goods until American citizens have transferred title to the purchaser. That "cash and carry" provision was not made effective in the President's Spanish proclamation.

DELAND STORE ROBBED. DELAND, Fla., May 2.—(P)—Police today reported the theft of approximately $1,000 from a safe in a retail store. Entrance was gained through a sky-light and the safe was blown.

Corner on 'Scoops' Held by Mussolini

MILAN, Italy, May 2.—(P)—Publisher Benito Mussolini's newspaper Popolo d'Italia here profits by a system that would make American newspaper publishers green with envy.

When the Popolo d'Italia publishes an important editorial revealing a government line of policy or important official pronouncements, as it does frequently, the Fascist government orders all newspapers in the nation to print a three-line announcement like this:

"The Popolo d'Italia today carries an important article on such and such a subject."

The other newspapers may not reproduce the article until the following day so that curious persons must buy Il Duce's newspaper. Then the following day, all newspapers are required to reproduce the important article, giving credit to Popolo d'Italia.

Officers who returned to St. Jean de Luz said the airplanes were "positively identified as German Junker bombers."

Franco lodged a vigorous protest with Great Britain tonight against the evacuation of refugees from Bilbao. Franco charged evacuation would aid the Basque defense of the seaport and provincial capital in violation of the European "hands-off Spain" accord.

Writing Career.

McGill's entire career has been devoted to writing, beginning with his first newspaper job in Nashville.

Born on a farm near Chattanooga, Tenn., he was educated at McCallie school, Chattanooga, and at Vanderbilt University.

Entering Vanderbilt in the fall of 1917, he took on a yearning to do his part and left school before the end of the year to enlist as a private in the Marine Corps.

Returning to school after more than a year's service, he did the rest of his fighting on the football field as a guard. He also was elected a member of the honorary sophomore and senior literary societies, and became a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity.

McGill became co-editor of the Vanderbilt "Hustler" school paper, and was the first editor of the Vanderbilt "Jade" college magazine.

He broke into actual newspaper work as a cub on the Nashville Banner, writing political news and there for five years, later serving as sports editor.

He came to the Constitution in 1929, becoming sports editor in 1931. It was in 1929 also that he married the former Miss Mary Elizabeth Leonard, of Nashville. Their 15-month-old daughter, Virginia Colvin McGill, is another "regular fellow."

McGill expects to augment his studies in Europe by an analysis of the ideas and attitudes of the people in general toward various problems of political and social nature.

Leaves in Fall.

He will leave the United States this fall for the six-month sojourn and will be accompanied by his wife and daughter. He will contribute special articles to The Constitution and will keep up his famous column, "Break o' Day," on the sports pages.

Mr. Pope, who will leave this country May 20, intends to spend nearly all of the six months of his study in England, investigating the retroactive influences of the press and political parties. He will be joined in England by his wife.

A graduate of Emory University, Mr. Pope became affiliated with the Atlanta Journal 12 years ago. He worked on the city news desk for about five years, before becoming assistant managing editor.

He is a member of the board of trustees of Brenau College.

Stone, Generalissimo of Court's Liberals, Asked Elevation of Conservative Roberts

"The Nine Old Men"

CHAPTER IX.
Stone stood before his class, twirling his eyeglasses on a black silk ribbon, never opening a book, never razzing, never raising his voice above a conversational tone. For one hour he talked, always twirling his eyeglasses. And there was something about the kindness of his manner, his desire to meet his class more than halfway, the sense of fairness permeating everything he did, which made Stone loved and revered perhaps more than any other Columbian professor of that day. And with finally his resignation, give all his time to Sullivan & Cromwell, there were members of his class who actually wept, while the staff of the Columbia Law Review gathered in an atmosphere of deep dejection to speculate on how they "could carry on with this guy gone." One year later when Stone came back to address the Law Review dinner, he got a reception which was indescribable.

Several years after that he came back as a justice of the supreme court to another Law Review dinner. By this time a new generation had come in which had not known Stone personally. Stone's reputation was enthusiastic, but his own performance was pathetic. When he arose to speak, he stammered, fumbled, looked at his notes, and finally, with a look of utter helplessness, he said: "I didn't have time to prepare a speech, but wrote out some notes coming up on the train. Now I can't even read my own notes. It proves, I suppose, that what I have always said that a man should stick to his own knitting. I hope you will forgive me." He sat down.

And indicative of the imprint Stone had left even upon a new generation was the feeling of sympathy which swept the audience. CLOSE TO 3 PRESIDENTS.

No justice of the supreme court has been as close to three presidents as Harlan Stone. Although he was one class ahead of Calvin Coolidge in Amherst, the two men did not become intimate until afterward, when young Coolidge did some legal jobs for Stone's father. As a member of the cabinet, Stone was probably as intimate as anyone could be with Calvin Coolidge, at least intimate enough to take with good-natured skepticism his promotion from a crusading attorney general to the isolated dignity of the supreme court, and to warn his chief in the White House that the worst panic since 1873 was in store for him.

Stone is on moderately good terms with Roosevelt, though he does not approve of many New Deal policies; in fact, was once quoted as saying: "If the damn fools want to go to hell, it's not our duty to stop them if that's what they want to do."

It was with Hoover, however, that Stone was really intimate. The intimacy began when both were members of the Coolidge cabinet, in the days when Hoover was classed as something of a liberal. The two families lived not far from each other, frequently dined together, and a bond of friendship grew up between the two men which never weakened even during the hectic days of the depression when Stone was quite frank in favoring a large-scale public works and relief program, subsequently adopted by Roosevelt and at that time urged upon Hoover by Dwight Morrow, Colonial Arthur Wood, and others.

Aided Cardinals.
Hoover consulted his friend on various problems during their early-morning jousts with the medicine ball. Stone never volunteered advice. But when Hoover asked his opinion, Stone gave it frankly, and it was his warm recommendation which clinched the appointment of Justice Carozza.

On the surface, Stone is on good terms with all of his court colleagues except McReynolds, whose rudeness he cannot tolerate. Beneath the surface, however, there is no great love lost between Stone and both Hughes and Roberts.

For the chief justice, Stone has no great regard, either in respect to his law or in respect to his constant efforts at compromise. Hughes' opinions frequently re-probably it was in the St. Paul case in 1930 that Stone first definitely emerged from the groping period and assumed the role of one of the forthright members of the court. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad had petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission to reorganize, and the ICC had approved the reorganization plans, provided it pass also upon the fees to be paid Kuhn Loeb & Company for financing the reorganization. On appeal to the supreme court a majority of the justices held with the railroad and ruled that the fee charged by the bankers was none of the ICC's business. Justices Stone, Holmes and Brandeis dissented, Stone writing a powerful opinion in which he laid down the thesis that the ICC was duty bound to protect the interests of the original St. Paul bondholders.

SMITH COURT PLAN APPROVED

The American Institute of Public Opinion, in testing public reaction on the presidential proposal to enlarge and liberalize the United States supreme court, took the plan of a former Atlantan, Dean Young B. Smith, of the Columbia law school, as the basis for a questionnaire on the solution of the high court problem by constitutional amendment, rather than by congressional action, as suggested by President Roosevelt.

The result of that poll showed 64 per cent in favor of the amendment plan as outlined by Dean Smith, while on the separate poll taken on the presidential proposal only 49 per cent were favorable.

Dean Smith proposes to enact a constitutional amendment to retire supreme court justices automatically when they reach the age of 75. Of the present supreme court five of the nine justices are 75 or over. He suggested the amendment procedure at the public hearings held on the presidential-supported supreme court bill by the judiciary committee of the senate. He offered his plan as the "easiest and quickest way out of our dilemma."

To those who have asserted a constitutional amendment would take too long for ratification by the required 36 states, Dean Smith points out that the 21st amendment was ratified in less than nine months. As a further means of hastening the decision, he points out that the amendment could be placed before the people in conventions, which could be set for the same date by enactment of congress.

To the objection that reactionaries might block an amendment by killing it in 13 states, Dean Smith replies that if the election returns of last November constitute a mandate to effect such a reform, there should be no difficulty in passing the amendment.

Dean Smith was formerly a prominent member of the bar in Atlanta. He now occupies the chair of dean of one of the most important law schools in the country and commands national hearing because of his reputation for studious consideration of problems before him.

He holds that the present federal court situation is "manifestly unsatisfactory and calls for corrective action," but explains that, while he is a Democrat and has supported President Roosevelt in the past, he cannot favor the proposal for "packing" the supreme court with younger and more liberal-thinking men.

Senator Edward Burke had previously proposed an amendment calling for compulsory retirement of justices at the age of 75, but he has indicated that he would incorporate the Smith features in his resolution. Not only does Senator Burke, an opponent of the President's plan, like the Smith proposal, but it is said that Senators Logan, of Kentucky, and Hatch, of New Mexico, who are mildly sympathetic with the President's plan, are enthusiastic over the amendment.

A CLASS IN FORUM LEADERSHIP

Emory University will have a class in forum leadership at its summer school, the first of its kind in the south. There are only one or two other institutions in the country giving similar courses.

A recent bulletin of the summer school says: The office of education under Commissioner John W. Studebaker now has 19 forum groups in the United States, with plans for extending these to a much larger number. Forums are already having difficulty in securing leaders, and the demand is rapidly increasing. It is to meet this need that a class for forum leaders will be conducted during the first term of the summer quarter.

The class will be under the direction of Dr. Cullen B. Gosnell, professor of political science, who has had personal experience as a forum leader under Dr. Studebaker. Other men and women experienced in forum work will be called to Dr. Gosnell's aid in conducting the group.

The plan of the course is to have lectures on forum methods, objectives, and similar topics, and then assign a particular study to each member of the class. Opportunity will thus be given to demonstrate before the class the proper method of conducting a forum.

This course, given in co-operation with the Atlanta public forum project and the office of education, is the first of its kind to be offered in the south. It is expected to make a valuable contribution to this significant activity in public life.

This is a useful service. Especially should clubwomen and teachers be interested. Georgia needs more trained leaders for study groups.

It is a hopeful sign that women's organizations are increasingly anxious to hear discussions on the improvement of county government.

HIGH TARIFFS AND COTTON

That the high tariff policy of the United States results in denying economic opportunity to the masses of the people and that the south, through its interest in cotton, is the chief sufferer under that policy, is forcefully argued in a statement recently issued by Walter Parker, of New Orleans.

Mr. Parker points out that the United States has long since passed out of that period in its history when it was a pioneer country, rapidly expanding and with huge profit earning capacity. It is now, he emphasizes, a country that produces a large surplus of products and a country that is the creditor of the entire world.

Under these conditions the only way in which the nation can dispose of its surplus production is by sale to other peoples in exchange for their surplus commodities. Sale of the American surplus for cash is out of the question when the nations of the world are already deeply in debt to America.

Yet, Mr. Parker asserts, the high tariff policy keeps out of this country a vast proportion of those surplus commodities other nations would like to send here, because they cannot compete under the tariffs proscribed with the home products. The result, he holds, is particularly disastrous to the south, which today sees the world market for its cotton rapidly shrinking. Other nations are developing cotton-growing sections because, with their own goods barred by high tariff walls from America, with the world's surplus gold supply already here, there is nothing they can offer in exchange for American cotton.

Under normal conditions the United States should export some 9,000,000 bales of cotton annually and consume domestically about 6,000,000 bales. The export trade is shrinking so rapidly that enforced acreage curtailment, campaigns for the growing of other crops upon the idle acres, and a general lowering of living conditions among the cotton growers of the south—with its far-reaching result upon the economy of the entire region—are seen as the results.

The only remedy, Mr. Parker holds, is a lowering of the artificial tariff walls on other commodities to clear international trade channels and thus permit free flow of commerce between the nations.

Such a step, he says, would result in injury only to a small, special privilege class. The great masses suffer under high protection because it inevitably results in raising their living costs above their earning capacity.

America must abandon the policy of high production costs and high living costs, created by tariff barriers, and must adjust herself to a policy of lower production costs and a reduced cost of living, to open competition with other industrial nations and to a world of free-flowing commerce, unburdened by artificial barriers.

Only then, he says, will the export market for the south's cotton be fully reopened, only then will southern economy return to a firm foundation and the 20,000,000 people dependent upon cotton for life enjoy that prosperity which by every law of supply and demand should be theirs today.

The ends for which Mr. Parker pleads are the same as those sought by Secretary of State Cordell Hull through the reciprocal trade treaties with other nations now being negotiated. Under those treaties the door for American imports of commodities which are not produced in this country in sufficient quantity to supply our needs, are opened to other nations which, in turn, take American exports of surplus crops here.

Secretary Hull, by these trade agreements, is following the wise and businesslike course to solution of a problem one of the chief results of which has been to threaten world dominance by American cotton.

Cotton, Mr. Parker holds, should always be worth 15 cents per pound, in gold, on a world market. Today, he points out, it is hardly worth 15 cents of a 59-cent dollar.

Secretary Hull's reciprocal trade treaties will, in time, assure a proper price for the south's cotton on all the markets of the world.

A Michigan manufacturer is in despair. His engineers have designed the perfect product, but can't think up a selling point.

Which comedienne originated the feather-head characterization is in debate. No one knows. There were Gracie Alens before there was a Gracie Allen.

"The young giant from Alton, Ill., now with a circus, has been seeing the New York sights." And nothing makes one seem as contrified as gazing down at skyscrapers.

Editorial of the Day

IT BEGIN'S WITH HOME TRAINING

(From the Philadelphia Inquirer.)

That crime prevention begins with the home training of the young should be evident to anyone giving the subject thought. The trouble is that too many people don't bother to think about it. Yet, as the administrative assistant to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, L. B. Nichols succinctly expressed it in a recent address, "If we are to prevent crime, we must begin with the high chair instead of the electric chair."

Mr. Nichols had some other things to say worth recording: "Schools must mold character as well as craftsmanship;" "The house where youth sometimes finds his parents must be a home and not a hotel;" "Crackpot criminologists, slobbering sob-sisters and fickle Freud reformers must be viewed in their true character;" "Prisons must be depopulated by true preventive measures instead of ill-administered schemes and theories."

Such well-delivered thrusts are valuable in attracting attention to the fact that combating crime is a responsibility of all citizens and not merely of law-enforcement officers. Those who help youths to overcome the handicaps of defective homes, evil companions and inadequate interests are helping to prevent crime.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON.

VALUES WASHINGTON, May 2.—The Berry story goes away back, and deep. For months now, negotiations have been going on hotly between the TVA and Major George L. Berry (federal industrial co-ordinator, bulk and body of labor's Non-Partisan League in the last campaign and champion of the political labor causes for Mr. Roosevelt).

Major Berry thought the marble, zinc and lead on his syndicate's land, flooded by the Norris dam backwater, was worth "millions." His own interest has been computed by his friends as something under $1,500,000, although he would settle probably for $200,000 or $300,000 less.

The TVA board of three felt the price was outlandish, so speak, has declined to settle, and is threatening condemnation proceedings.

The matter was kept so confidential during all this period that even President Roosevelt is said by the Berry people to have been uninformed. But, after Berry was mentioned in the public prints as the likely successor of the late Senator Bachman, things began to happen.

TIPS Representative Taber conducted a lengthy discussion of TVA appropriations on the floor of the house last week. He spoke the following few unnoticed sentences:

"I desire to call the attention of the house to the fact that there are a large number of claims pending against the TVA for so-called mineral properties and on page 449 of the hearings these claims are listed. Among these claims are about 40 claims of C. A. Harris, W. H. Ford, George Collins and George L. Berry for $1,633,000. We were told by the directors of the TVA that they did not take a great deal of stock in the validity of these claims, but I thought the house ought to know that this George L. Berry is the same who is the so-called chief co-ordinator of NRA, and I hope the TVA will stand up and fight for its rights and see that nothing is put over on them by this operation. I think this is one of the things that ought to be watched very closely by the TVA and by the committee as they go over these claims in the future."

The page cited in the hearings showed this sole reference to the 40 claims and names in fine print, without any further identifications, then added:

"For flooding properties, some said to contain marble, in Norris reservoir. Amount of claims reported as some millions of dollars; amount submitted by owners' representatives to the Authority for the first property which was considered, $1,633,000. The value of these claims is disputed by the Authority, and condemnation proceedings have been authorized by the board to acquire the mineral rights lying below the surface of the Norris reservoir. The outstanding interest consists of mineral leases."

That is all—and TVA officials, at that time, declined to say a word about it.

DELAY What happened was that Major Berry and his associates acquired land in the area to be flooded long ago, some of the acquisitions dating back 20 years. Berry was producing marble there, but the zinc and lead deposits apparently were undeveloped. He considers it the very finest marble in the world.

But for some reason or other, negotiations looking toward final settlement of the claims were not seriously undertaken until after the land was flooded by the Norris dam. Then the dealing got warm. The TVA offered what Berry considered "a ridiculous price." Eventually he was called in by the board. Some compromise negotiations were undertaken, whereby the superintendent of mines, under Interior Secretary Ickes, was to have fixed a price which neither side was to be bound by.

The Berry side of the story is that he probably made a mistake in failing to go into the courts and sue in the beginning, but he is now well armed with all his correspondence to the TVA and a great volume of records to justify his position against any strained insinuations or allegations.

SIGNIFICANCE To an outsider, such an affair may seem to be more political than serious, but politicos over looked none of the possible ramifications. Their interest on this broad land acquisition subject has been whetted by the fact that the government has acquired vast amounts of it everywhere, in connection with various projects, during the past four years. The situation has inspired talk and surmises, mostly unprintable because without foundation.

What has whetted interest in this particular case, however, is the fact that Chairman Arthur Morgan, of TVA, has been under cross-fire from a wing of the administration, what might be called "the left wing," where Berry's sympathies lie.

It is quite a simple matter of valuation for the courts to settle, and apparently both sides wish it had been so settled a long time ago.

PHILOSOPHY Further research indicates the Demagogue Club house is in session. It is not incorporated, has no directors, but transacts more important business than is transacted out on the floor. It is one of the few places in Washington where a congressman is likely to say what he thinks.

Membership in the club requires compliance with this unamendable and unpackable constitution:

Vote for all expenditures and against all taxes.

Always stand by the veterans, the farmers, labor and the independent merchants (even if it beats you for re-election).

Speak only in generalities and avoid controversial subjects.

Take solemn oath to vote for nothing which will endanger your re-election.

Be against Wall Street, war, poverty and disease.

It may be right, the maiden said, To sing, "Let Freedom Ring!" But who would waltz with a president? P'd sooner dance with a king.

You've Met The Type.

Was a business visitor from the north, making his first trip through the south. And nothing whatsoever pleased him.

He came to Atlanta and the manager of his firm's local branch entertained him. The Atlantan and his wife met their visitor at the train. And as they drove through the city, he spoke of the two Carolinas of Georgia and Alabama and Tennessee, states he had already seen. And everything was wrong with all them. He criticized their people and their laws. He was, in short, 100 per cent incoherent when it came to the south.

The wife, who was driving the car, thought she would show him something he couldn't criticize. So she drove through Ansley Park and then out Ponce de Leon and slowly rolled down Lullwater road and through Emory. A round-about trip, admittedly.

But the dogwoods were at their finest and she wanted to impress the visitor.

But nary a word of praise said he.

Surely, the wife thought, he will be pleased with our home, as they approached the place with its velvety green lawn bordered with varicolored tulips, with its formal shrubbery and the dancing tree shadows on the grass. The driveway was pink with blooming shrubs on either side.

Finally the visitor spoke.

"What's that ugly brown spot on the driveway border?" he asked, indicating a small clump of thrift that had turned brown. That was his sole comment on the entire panorama of beauty that had been spread before him.

While On The Subject.

While on the subject of out-of-town guests, another friend had occasion to take a business visitor to a well-known Atlanta hotel for dinner.

The stranger looked at the voluminous menu, then tossed it aside.

"Boy," he asked the negro waiter, "what have you extra good for dinner?"

"Lawsy, boss, I don't know," grinned the negro. "I can't read no mo' than you."

Most people assume that our form of government makes a dictatorship impossible, yet twice in our short history we have been ruled by dictators as tyrannical, as ruthless and as cruel as the rulers who now throttle Europe and Asia.

Neither of our dictators was chief executive. They ruled from behind the throne—the first supported by a powerful minority, the second by a majority.

The first began his reign of terror in 1798, just one hundred years before our war with Spain.

We are not a licensed or qualified airplane pilot. We never hope to be one. But when as and if this flying-under-your-own-power business becomes practical we pray to have enough power left in our aged elbows and knees to go in for it.

Even though this column believes that recent decisions of the supreme court make the President's court plan unnecessary, and even though we are happy in some of the new company in which we find ourselves, we are unable to accept or excuse those southern opponents of the plan who have lugged in laboriously the negro question. Particularly as so many of them insist at the same time that the supreme court has been and is the eternal champion of those minorities and minority rights which they say the south represents. You can't talk white supremacy and minority rights at the same time in praise of the same body, even though some of our southerners have been doing it in course of the court debate.

We mention the matter only because it is, to us, another example of a persisting tendency to drag in the negro question on every occasion where southern support is desired. Nine times out of 10 the dragging in of the question is the sign of the demagogue. It seems particularly demagogic to drag it into the court controversy, since the supreme court cannot by any stretch of the imagination be considered the friend of so-called "white supremacy" in the south today. Its decisions are tending more and more to enforce certain minority or individual rights which, in some southern opinion, mean an end to that supremacy.

This is no argument for the court plan, since we are against the plan now that the President has won the basic thing he wanted. It is simply an argument against the often demagogic of introducing the negro question as a means of persuading southern people on wholly irrelevant matters.

"Economic appeasement," Norman H. Davis told a London audience the other day, is the first step toward settlement of political differences in the world. Thus does one Tennessean put into words the great truth which another Tennessean, Cordell Hull, with his reciprocal tariffs, is putting into deeds. The war drums may stop throbbing indeed someday and "the common sense of most hold the gretful realms in awe"—if Tennessee just holds out with her world statesmen.

Grateful for Opportunity.

Earlier in the day, President Grant addressed an audience that is continually finding additional evidence of the divinity of the work in which we are engaged."

"The Book of Mormon," he declared, "is the great confirmation of the Bible itself," and with anecdotes and historical references, he built up a summons for faith in its work.

"In 1882 I was chosen as one of the apostles of the church," he continued, "and since that time I have been energetically engaged in my duties. It has been my privilege to travel in many lands and many climes.

Taylor Objects.

"I am always grateful for the opportunity to testify that the Lord saw fit to visit the earth again and introduce his son to Joseph Smith."

Besides President Grant, other speakers last night were LeGrand Richards, of Atlanta, president of the Southern States Mission; Charles A. Callis, a member of the church's council of 12 apostles, and LeRoi C. Snow, secretary to President Grant, who expressed keen satisfaction with his first visit to the southeastern states.

Taylor Objects.

"I am always grateful for the opportunity to testify that the Lord saw fit to visit the earth again and introduce his son to Joseph Smith."

Mr. Snow said last night that President Grant will leave Atlanta at about 6:30 o'clock tonight, and will either return to Salt Lake City or journey to Chicago or New York.

Completion of a new church at Augusta, Ga., and construction of others at Liberty, Miss.; Orlando, Fla., and Greenville, Miss., was reported by Mr. Richards.

Experiences and anecdotes of his own full life were recounted last night by Heber J. Grant, president of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints, at the concluding session of the church's Southern States Mission Jubilee.

President Grant, who addressed approximately 2,500 persons at sessions at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and 6 o'clock last night in the auditorium of the William A. Bass Junior High school, gave inspirational talks in which he told how he had overcome obstacles in his own life.

Power Increased.

"That which we persist in doing," said the church leader, who came here from Salt Lake City to be honored guest at the convention of the five-state mission, "becomes easier to do, not because the nature of the thing to be done changes, but because our power to do increases."

President Grant related how, as a youth of 18, he began to plan his life, with definite ambitions for the coming years.

"We are the architects and builders of our lives," he said. "Criticize yourself severely and try to improve each day. Dream, oh Youth, nobly and manfully, and your dreams shall be your prophesy."

Evidence of Divinity.

Earlier in the day, President United States makes an official public appearance, the band plays "Hail to Our Chief."

The words to the march which heralds the appearance of the chief executive would sound ludicrous if sung. They refer not to a man, but to a pine tree:

These words, besides, were not even written by an American, but by an Englishman—Sir Walter Scott.

And to top that, the tempo guide calls for the piece to be played "majestically" and the best that can be done with it, with its eighths and sixteenths, makes it sound something like a march of the elfins.

Taylor Objects.

All that doesn't seem quite right to H. A. Taylor, who has been in charge of the orchestra at Tech High school for the past six years. Mr. Taylor has written another march, which he hopes will supplant what he calls the "undignified" air which is played at the appearance of the President.

Mr. Taylor's march, which is titled, "Hail to Our Chief Executive," carries with it more of the sober dignity befitting the occasion for which it is used, he declares.

The words, too, do not refer to a pine tree or any other kind of plant life, but to the President himself.

Mr. Taylor's march was played publicly for the first time last Wednesday afternoon at a tea at the Governor's mansion for delegates to the Southeastern Regional Democratic Women's convention. In spite of its impressiveness, it made little headway against the tea cups, so no one knew the Tech High band was playing an air which in the future may become the fanfare for the country's chief.

Seeks Use on Air.

Mr. Taylor airmailed a copy of his composition last night to "March of Time," in hopes that it will be used over the network presentation Thursday night in place of the usual air when the program calls for a rendition of "Hail to Our Chief."

Well known in Atlanta musical circles, Mr. Taylor is in charge of band concerts for Atlanta's observance of National Music Week, which opened here yesterday under the sponsorship of the Women's Chamber of Commerce. He also composed the Tech High Battle Song in 1931, during his first year with the school's music department.

YOUNG CRIMINALS.

J. Edgar Hoover made the statement in March of this year that 17.5 per cent of all persons arrested in the United States are under 21 years of age, and 34.5 per cent of all persons arrested are under 25 years of age. This startling statement, declared Mr. Hoover, "challenges every citizen to assume his share of the responsibility in trying to lift our nation from the embarrasment of being the most lawless in the world.

Coming nearer home, the Georgia Prison Commission records for 1935-36 show that 651 convicts, or 14 per cent, range in age from 13 to 19 years—average 16 years of age, and that 2,156, or 46 per cent, average 23 years of age; while 60 per cent of the total convicts in Georgia are under 30 years of age.

Naturally the question arises, can these youthful criminals be saved to society? Instead of becoming "lifers," could they be built into useful men and women? Aren't they worth saving?

Dr. R. O. Squires, for many years chief physician at Sing Sing, made this statement recently: "The way to make a bad boy worse is to send him to prison. I am a firm believer in the probationary system, giving a boy a chance to retrieve his first mistake." This statement from a man who has studied youthful criminals for many years will have weight with thoughtful people as they ponder the right course in dealing with those who have already committed crime.

I wish we might go beyond the mere question of correction and seek to prevent these young people from becoming even first offenders, and I believe we can. I know, as everyone does, that the job begins in the home. If the home is omitted in trying to develop good citizens, we have failed before we start.

J. K. Orr, of Atlanta, comes forward with one of the finest suggestions I have anywhere heard by which we can link the efforts of the home and the school and the church and every other good agency in preventing crime among our boys and girls. It is Mr. Orr's idea that a copy of the Proverbs of the Bible be placed in every boy and girl's hands, asking them to read and memorize as many Proverbs as they can. It is proposed that the Masons of Georgia foster this movement, and I know they will. A good start has already been made. "A Chapter a Day Keeps the Devil Away," is the slogan of this vital and wholesome movement, started by Mr. Orr, who has done so much for better citizenship.

"The immediate effect of the new rates will be a saving of approximately $3,000,000 in the telegraph bill of the nation," said R. B. White, Western Union president.

In radiotelegraphy, both companies will discontinue the 15-word night message and 60-word night letter and establish a new rate on a 30-word minimum.

The 30-word night letter may be sent anywhere in the United States for 50 cents.

The proposed reduction in telegraph night letter rates from Atlanta to various points in the United States will mean a material saving to Atlanta, telephone officials here declared last night.

The 50-cent charge on 25-word night letters would cause a material reduction in telegraph costs to many points, it was asserted.

Examples of savings were cited from Atlanta to such points as Miami, Chicago, Washington and New Orleans, with a present charge of 63 cents for a 50-word letter; to New York, with its present 75-cent rate and to San Francisco and Seattle, for which a rate of $1.26 now obtains.

NEW YORK, May 2.—(UPI)—There was hardly a dry eye on Broadway tonight as darkened marques of burlesque houses bore silent witness to the passing of theatrical art in the raw—but in the heart of pretty Jane Marsh, a shy young girl from Chicago, all was sweetness and light.

The reason for Miss Marsh's thinly veiled joy is she has her own form of art.

"I may be nuts," said Miss Marsh, "but I think my act will make the people forget they ever saw a strip-tease dance. My act is sweet and wholesome, because instead of taking off my clothes on the stage, I put them on."

"There is certainly nothing wrong about putting on clothes, is there?" she asked.

Her art is quite simple. She merely appears on the stage nude, and begins to put on her clothes.

"I am definitely nude," she said. "I come out on the stage that way and slip on my black lace panties. Is there anything wrong about that?

"I put on a garter belt. Then my black stockings. Then I get into my shoes and after that I put on the taxicab dress. By that time I got the audience moaning."

So Miss Marsh, License Commissioner Moss willing, will step into the breach, so to speak, left by the departure of several score ladies of the burlesque whose places of business were closed Saturday night by Mr. Moss' failure to supply them with new licenses.

55,000,000 READY TO SPRING TO ARMS IN 2 SCORE NATIONS

Survey Discloses U. S. Is 19th in Rank of Fighting
Power.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—A survey by American military authorities disclosed today that at least 55,000,000 trained men can "spring to arms overnight" in 48 nations.

The regular army, reserves and other trained men in those countries, a survey shows, number 54,412,628, not including China's uncounted military forces, conservatively estimated as at least 1,000,000.

Of that grand total of trained fighting men 6,513,824 (not including China) actually are enrolled in the regular armies.

The United States now has an estimated 474,378 men in the regular army, national guard and reserves, placing it 19th in total fighting power.

U. S. Nears Peak.

General Malin Craig, chief of staff, reported to congress that on July 1 the regular army will reach its authorized peak of 165,000 men.

On that basis, the survey shows, the United States will rank 10th in size of regular forces, below the British empire, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Poland, Soviet Russia, Rumania and Spain.

The survey brought to light these salient facts concerning fighting land forces:

Soviet Russia has the world's largest army, with 1,545,000 regu-

Opposing Forces on Maneuvers in Pacific Await Contact.

ABOARD BATTLESHIP PENNSYLVANIA, IN MID-PACIFIC MANEUVERS, May 2.—(AP)—Divine services were held on quarterdecks under tropical skies in mid-Pacific today but not for a minute did any of the 139 ships of the United States fleet relax wartime vigilance.

Admiral C. B. Bloch, aboard the battleship California, was maneuvering the forces of his black fleet as invaders, while Vice Admiral William T. Tarrant, aboard the heavy cruiser Indianapolis, was disposing his fast-striking white forces to thwart the invasion.

Whether contact between the two fleets engaged in annual manuevers, would be established this week was a question. Just when depends on the plans of the opposing commanders.

Newest Problem Is Policing Rather Than Immigration Control.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—Immigration Bureau officials said today that their newest problem is alien policing rather than immigration control.

They expressed hope that congress soon would adopt a house bill providing for deportation of certain aliens not reached by present statutes and for exercise of limited discretion in deportable cases where special hardships might be worked on individuals.

Acting Immigration Commissioner J. Shaughnessy said the number of aliens in the United States had decreased so materially in recent years that "by the end of the next decade an alien may be a comparatively scarce individual."

SUPREME COURT SECURITY DECISION MAY COME TODAY

Outcome of Alabama Law Seemingly Dependent on Justice Roberts.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(UP)—Entering the final month of its current term, the supreme court tomorrow may decide constitutionalities of unemployment insurance features of the social security act, with the outcome seemingly dependent on Justice Roberts.

Social security is the only remaining important New Deal test left on the docket.

Two phases of the law are involved. Unemployment insurance, as represented in the Alabama law and the federal pay roll tax, was argued a month ago. Old age annuities, as represented in a test originating in Boston, has yet to be argued.

Joint Decision Possible.

On many New Deal tests this term where more than one case has been presented, the court has waited to decide all at the same time. There is nothing to prevent the court, however, from ruling on unemployment insurance immediately.

There are two clues in past decisions of the court as to the outcome.

One is that when New York's unemployment insurance law was tested earlier in the term with Justice Stone absent, the court upheld the law 4 to 4. The court did not specify which justices voted in favor of the law and which against, but on their past records, Washington assumed the "conservatives"—Justices McReynolds, Van Devanter, Sutherland and Butler—were against it. If the same lineup held in the Alabama cases, it would be more than probable that Justice Stone would give the "liberals" a 5-to-4 majority.

May Spell Defeat.

Foes of Roosevelt's reorganization bill believe that a decision upholding social security, with Roberts siding with the government, would destroy all chances of the bill's passage.

Proponents of the bill so far have refused to concede that the court has definitely embarked on a course of "liberal" interpretation of the constitution.

The senate judiciary committee, which at present holds the fate of the court bill, will resume discussion tomorrow. Due to three shifts last week, an unfavorable report by a 10-to-8 vote is virtually certain on the proposal for a six-judge increase.

AIR MANEUVERS

Langley Field Fleet Off to Coast.

LANGLEY FIELD, Va., May 2. (P)—Eleven bombers and 18 two-seater pursuit planes took off here today for California to participate in army maneuvers.

Captain Waller Wheeler was in command of the pursuit ships and Lieutenant David R. Gibbs and Captain A. Y. Smith commanded two groups of bombers. The ships were scheduled to spend the night at El Paso, Texas.

Major General Frank M. Andrews, general headquarters air force commander, is scheduled to leave tomorrow in his flagship, a Douglas transport, with several staff officers and enlisted men.

Seven attack planes are due to hop tomorrow for the coast, with an overnight stop at Barksdale field.

Reds Are Urged To Pick Divine For President

VATICAN REPORTED INCENSED AT HITLER

Likelihood of Agreement Over Differences Diminished by German's Actions.

VATICAN CITY, May 2.—(P)—Vatican prelates tonight saw likelihood of a Vatican-German agreement over differences diminished by Hitler's May Day remarks in a sermon to the First Humanist Society.

Describing the Divine movement as "Communism which has God in it," Porter said, "If the Communist party leaders were really clever, they could multiply their votes many times over by nominating Father Divine for President."

But, he added, "no such system as Father Divine's fanatical union of credulity and economics . . . can succeed in America." Religious ecstasy is too close to the psychopathic marches of the mind to be a safe basis for solving labor trouble."

Divine told hospital authorities he would assume "full responsibility" of Mother Divine's expenses but added that he thought the "bill is too much."

'WOMEN'S BRIGADE' OF WPA DEPENDENTS TO INVADE CAPITAL

200 'Representative Wives and Mothers' To Demand Three Billion Fund.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(UP)—A "women's brigade" of 200 representative wives and mothers of WPA workers will invade the capital May 15 to lobby for a $3,000,000 federal work-relief program, it was announced tonight.

The women, it was said by a spokesman, figuratively would camp on the doorsteps of congress until it acts on an appropriation to finance work-relief.

"They will act as a mass lobby," he said, "putting pressure on individual congressmen and other officials to provide adequate relief funds."

"They will tell those who want to balance the national budget by cutting relief expenditures about their troubles in trying to balance their own budgets at home on WPA starvation wages."

The invasion will be climaxed on May 22 when the women will be joined by hundreds of others for a one-day mass demonstration including a parade to the capitol, he added. Local demonstrations are planned simultaneously throughout the country.

DR. DODD SPEAKS AT DRUID HILLS

Shreveport Baptist Minister Delivering Sermons Here Twice Daily.

"We must keep clear the channels of faith by which we ever lift the spiritual sickness of life, else the dead weight of godless materialism will take over our superstructures of civilization and everything we hold dear will be marred by the crash," said Dr. M. E. Dodd, distinguished Baptist minister, of Shreveport, La., who is preaching twice daily at the Druid Hills Baptist church, in his sermon Sunday morning.

Dr. Dodd was preaching from the text, "They that were scattered abroad went everywhere proclaiming the Word." He called upon Christians in every walk of life to accept that divine appointment as ambassadors, witnesses and evangelists.

"The world hears enough bad news, enough reports of disappointment and failure and fear. We have here the Good News of the Kingdom of God—the Gospel of redemption by which men are lifted from the slough of despond and given strength and power to fulfill their mission," he said.

Dr. Dodd will be heard again at 11 o'clock this morning and at 8:30 o'clock tonight. The services will continue through Friday. The public is invited to attend these meetings at the church, located at Ponce de Leon and Highland.

LABOR BOARD OFFICIAL LAUDS BUSINESS MEN

NEW YORK, May 2.—(P)—Mrs. Elmore Herrick, regional director of the Labor Relations Board, paid tribute today to "the good sportsmanship" of employers who have accepted the national labor relations act since its constitutionality was decided by the supreme court three weeks ago.

"Those who are concerned with the continuance of democracy," he said, "have nothing to fear from this (CIO) great drive for organization. We aim, merely, to raise the standard of living of American labor."

ASKS INTERVENTION

Laborite Seeks Cabinet Action in Bus Strike.

LONDON, May 2.—(P)—Government intervention to end London's strike of 25,000 busmen was demanded by Dr. Alfred Salter, Laborite M. P., at a rally of 30,000 workers in Hyde park today.

His sentiments were echoed by footloose Londoners, many of whom trudged home after spending a sunny day inspecting the city's elaborate coronation decorations.

Subway stations near the park were jammed and two, the Marble Arch and Oxford Circus stations, were closed temporarily to enable incoming passengers to fight their way out through the crowds waiting to board the trains.

With the strike in its second day, both sides were busy with preparations for opening of the government's court of inquiry on the strike tomorrow.

EMPLOYMENT GAIN OF 8 MILLION NOTED

Number of Employables Increased Considerably, However, Perkins Says.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(P)—The Bureau of Labor statistics estimated today that 34,138,000 persons were employed in non-agricultural industries in March, a gain of 8,241,000 in the four-year period since the low point of March, 1933.

The bureau's figure was only 1,239,000 below the estimate for March, 1929, but Secretary of Labor Perkins pointed out that the nearness of the two estimates "does not mean that unemployment has been reduced to within 1,240,000 of the 1929 level."

"A very considerable increase in the number of employables has taken place during the past eight years," she explained, "due to normal population growth."

BRITON ADVOCATES VERSAILLES CHANGE TO AVERT CONFLICT

Sir Herbert Samuel Sees
Eastern Europe War, Involving England.

NEW YORK, May 3.—(AP)—A revision of the treaty of Versailles as a means of eliminating deep-seated convictions which may lead to war was suggested today by Sir Herbert Samuel, British liberal leaders, in the current issue of "International Conciliation" published by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Describing the Spanish civil war as a "war of ideas" Sir Herbert foresees the possibility of a similar conflict in eastern Europe, with Britain being drawn into the fight.

The hardships of the last war and the depression, Sir Herbert asserted, has taught millions of Europeans something of the social system and their place in it, factors which he said had brought the continent into a dangerously explosive condition.

"The need for a revision of the treaty of Versailles becomes increasingly obvious," Sir Herbert declared. "To justify revision, it is not necessary to assume that the Versailles provisions were wholly bad. On the contrary, those who were familiar with the strained conditions of Europe before 1914 must recognize that the treaty removed more injustices than it created. Yet, the injustices exist and they feed the appetites that make for war."

ROOSEVELT BASKS UNDER IDEAL SKIES

President Spends Quiet Sabbath; Hasn't Luck at Tarpot.

GALVESTON, Texas, May 2.—(UP)—President Roosevelt, with ideal weather prevailing, spent a quiet Sabbath today cruising on the U. S. S. Potomac off Port Aransas, about 200 miles southwest of Galveston.

Already tanned from his journey on the destroyer Moffett from New Orleans and as a result of his first fishing yesterday, the vacationing chief executive devoted today to sunning himself on deck and reading in his cabin.

A few mackerel were caught yesterday from a 40-foot motor whaleboat. Word from the party today was that no attempt had yet been made for tarpon.

Two navy seaplanes were being sent here from Pensacola, Fla., to replace the two damaged yesterday when a strong wind caused them to drag anchor and collide. They will be used to take mail from White House headquarters here and return any the President wishes to dispatch to Washington.

The accident to the two planes, whose wings were damaged, caused officials to use an automobile and a small boat to transmit the neutrality bill late yesterday to the Potomac.

Arrival of the measure, which was signed shortly afterward, found the President reading a book in his cabin, still dressed in old gray trousers and a white polo shirt.

Miss Palmer Feted
At Graduation Tea
By Her Grandmother

Miss Margaret Palmer was central figure at the graduation tea given Friday by her grandmother, Mrs. T. R. Sawtell, at her home on Peachtree road. The occasion assembled a throng of the schoolgirl set and the honor guest's contemporaries at Washington seminary from where she will graduate in May.

The home was adorned with quantities of spring flowers from the hostess' gardens. The beautifully appointed tea table was centered with a plateau of blue flag lilies and pale pink peonies. Punch was served on the terrace overlooking the garden.

Receiving with Mrs. Sawtell and Miss Palmer was Mrs. C. F. Palmer, mother of the young honor guest. Mrs. Richard Sawtell and Miss Laura Palmer assisted in entertaining. Little Miss Jeannette Palmer received the cards at the door.

Miss Palmer received her guests wearing a gown of white chiffon draped over pink taffeta with a cluster of valley lilacs gracing her shoulder. However, the lad wins the heavy stakes, and the henchman accuse Cortez of a double-cross.

From that point forward, the film gains in thrills and excitement. There is plenty of fast action, and the dialogue is snappy.

On the stage, "Metropolitan Varieties" brings an able group of entertainers, including the easy-on-the-eye Abdallah Girls, a line of five charming steppers. Feature acts include singing comedy, dancing, and all that makes for worthwhile entertainment.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, the "Gold Book of Bidding and Play," which is being reproduced in this column in daily instalments.

REOPENING WITH AN OVERCALL

When the fourth hand defender has not the proper distributional type of hand for a double, but has a biddable suit with about one and one-half honor tricks, he should reopen the bidding with a simple overcall even though his hand is a trick short of the safety margin required by the Rule of Two and Three. Holding a strong suit and about two and one-half honor tricks, he should make a jump overcall of two.

Assume that the bidding has gone:

South	West	North	East
1♦	Pass	Pass
East should double, holding:

TODAY'S HAND.

Here is a hand that created an enormous swing in a recent team-of-four tournament.

SOUTH

♦A J 9 8 3 2

In one room East and West were permitted to hold the contract at five hearts, which they had no difficulty in making, losing only one diamond and one club. This gave East-West a plus score of 650. In the other room the bidding was fiercely competitive, as follows:

East	South	West	North
1 spade	2 diamonds	3 spades
Pass	4 spades	5 hearts	Pass
Pass	5 spades	6 diamonds	Double
6 hearts	6 spades	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

In my opinion, West should have bid three hearts over the one spade instead of two diamonds, but probably the future bidding would have been just the same. It was West's opening lead against the six spade contract that created the enormous swing.

For reasons known only to himself, West decided to open the king of diamonds. This lead must have seemed like manna in the desert to declarer. He promptly cracked his losing heart on the diamond ace, knocked out the opposing trumps in two leads, ruffed the heart return and, entering dummy with a third trump, successfully finessed against the club king. Two club ruffs in dummy then established the club suit and easily brought home 12 tricks.

With first-round control of the opponents' trump suit, it seems to me that any opening lead other than the singleton club was foolish. South's hand could be visualized as almost entirely spades and clubs. No other holding would justify his bidding. Certainly there was more chance that dummy, who had doubled six diamonds, held the diamond ace than the heart ace and, thus, even if declarer had only one red card, a heart opening could do no harm. If declarer was so fortunate as to hold six spades, two diamonds and five clubs, and were able to ruff an opening heart lead, then to knock out adverse trumps and later to throw off dummy's long diamond on a long club suit, this would depend on East's inability to stop the club suit. On East's bidding it was almost certain that he had such a club stopper and, therefore, this eventuality should not have been feared.

Obviously, a club opening followed by the first round take of the spade ace, and then followed by a heart shift, would have given the defenders the ace of spades, the ace of hearts, and a club ruff. Instead of the opponents making six spades doubled for 1,610 points, they would have gone down 500.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: What is the proper opening bid on the following: Spades, A J 9 8; hearts, A Q J 8; diamonds, J 7 5; clubs, 10 9. Answer: One spade.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Friday.—I promised I'd tell something about this trip, which has been rather an amusing and eventful one. From Cleveland to Chicago everything went smoothly, except that our youngest passenger, aged seven months, found the trip not to her liking and told us so vociferously.

I have always thought that girl babies had better lungs than boys and this one proved it. She never stopped. I was almost more sorry for her poor mother, who worried about the rest of the passengers, than I was for the baby herself; though there were moments when I thought the infant would burst.

We arrived in Chicago around 4 a.m. and were informed that the ceiling was too low to proceed. We all went up to the Blackstone hotel and I hope everybody else slept as well as I did. By 10:30 we were back at the airport.

Mr. C. R. Smith, of the airline, came down to our plane and remarked that the modern plane was so perfect it required greater skill on the part of the pilots than ever before. He showed me some of the new devices they were using to attain this skill.

When we took off there were two baby passengers on the plane. The second one was more sophisticated and not so decided in her tastes. She did not complain as vigorously. But our baby of the night before had periods during the day when she told us in no uncertain terms what she thought of her travels.

In Omaha we ran into a muddy field and were mired. Nearly an hour was spent getting the plane out again. I've seen automobiles taken out of the mud but never thought of a plane being taken out.

Cheyenne we took on another baby passenger, this time aged three and most sophisticated. She had made eight trips across the continent. For a long time she sat quietly in her seat in the passenger compartment with no one with her. Her father was the co-pilot and she was returning to her mother in Salt Lake City.

The father came out once and brought her down to introduce me to her. She took the introduction solemnly and with very little interest, but after he returned to the pilot's compartment, she waited about five minutes and then came down the aisle and became friendly. For about an hour, she sat in my lap, much to my entertainment.

The last part of the trip was clear and beautiful. We flew over the snow-covered Wasatch mountains and then saw the sun setting across the Great Salt Lake. It was one of those unforgettable sights which make an airplane trip memorable.

LIGHT, CALCIUM, PHOSPHORUS, LONG YOUTH.

The main chemical elements composing the teeth are calcium and phosphorus, and adequate daily intake of vitamin D is essential for the utilization of these elements from food or medicine.

Original source of all vitamin D is sunlight, particularly the ultraviolet rays of sunlight—not violet, but invisible colorless rays beyond the blue, indigo and violet in the spectrum of sunlight. These invisible colorless rays of sunlight are the ones that produce sunburn and tan. They are the rays of light that produce the chemical change in permanent teeth.

As go the teeth so go the nerves, the arteries, the vital organs. On other occasions I have said every tooth is worth a thousand dollars. No fooling. I believe two or three years are cut off from one's expectation of life for each tooth lost by disease, accident or design.

It was a funny office, Rolled top desks, high stools, hook files—

The most modern thing is a phone that dials.

The gray-haired man's the manager, He sees me over gold-rimmed specs

Perched on an unsteady upturned nose—

He asks, "What could you want here, we're in need of nothing." I smile, "Surely you'll take time to see the things I have to show you."

"Can't use 'em lady—"

And I—"But you know not what they are?"

"I'm busy, sorry," says the enterprising man

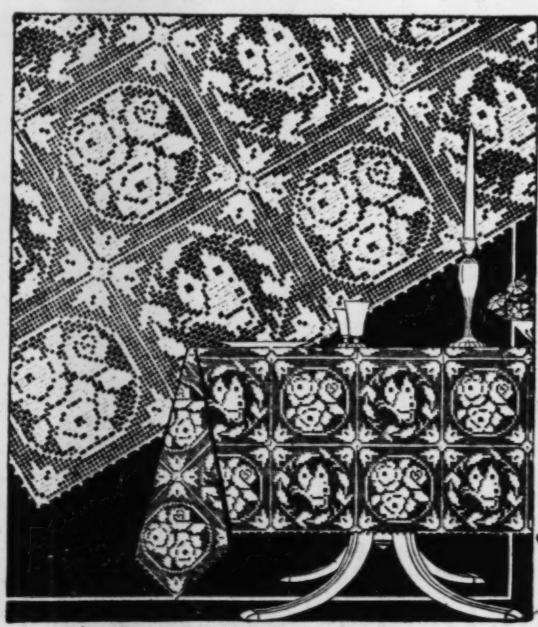

As he takes up his detective story.

This I picture is a thriving factory. Where undies are being made.

I'm just asking, are you as I surprised

That even up-to-date they've thrived?

New Watch-Shaped Loose Powder Vanity in Black Enamel

By LILLIAN MAE.

Spring and a sense of newness—or at least a desire for newness—is all about us. You wouldn't think of going out in a new outfit, carrying an old, out-of-tune bag, would you? Then, would you start out with a new outfit including bag, and for that very necessary complexion touch-up, pull out a bedraggled—looking compact? certainly not!

I'm all a-twitter today over a new compact which is the answer to all the questions. Round and flat like a thin pocket watch, it won't make the new bag bulge in an unsightly manner. It is black polished enamel with gold decoration on top and the duckiest clasp I've ever seen on a vanity. It's called the hand bag clasp and directions for opening read "insert finger tip under the bow and lift. To close, press top and bottom together until catch snaps." It looks and acts like a very definite fastening—not one that would be constantly opening or spilling powder on the best dress.

The inside is finished in yellow gold color, even to the very fine silk mesh which lets pass through your favorite powder in the amount just as little or as much as your need demands. The puff included is finest lambs' wool.

There are compacts and compacts, but I believe you will be just as enthusiastic as I am over this one; which comes in a neat suede bag to protect it from being scratched by other articles always carried in the hand bag.

If you wish to know the name of this vanity and where it may be purchased, call Lillian Mae at The Constitution office. In case you do not live in Atlanta, accompany your query with a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

A cleft palate, a scarred lip, due to an operation, and bad impediment in speech have given me a devil of a life. Everyone says it is just a mild affliction, but they don't know how embarrassing it is not to be able to make people understand what you say. In school the children teased and mocked me. I had to fight girls as well as boys on account of it. The older I get the more sensitive I become and as for going where I will meet strangers, I won't do it. I have had two years at college, a business course and piano lessons but cannot find work. If I were independent I would find the affliction less bitter, but as it is I must depend on my parents and when they are gone I will be dependent upon my brothers and sisters. They are happily married. They wanted love and life and got it, while I have nothing and look forward to a blank future. It is hard to see them well set up; it's hard to read of married happiness in books and see it on the screen and know that you are out work, out of love and out of life. Is there anything that will help me, if so, tell me quickly.

Crackers Beat Travelers Pair as Leonard Wins 4th Game

BREAK
O'DAY!
By Ralph McGill

It was down on the Cracker bench during the intermission between the two games with Little Rock yesterday. The Crackers were feeling great after pulling the game out of the fire in the ninth.

The Crackers were talking:

Chatham—"Winning games from clubs like Little Rock will get us to hustling again. I guess we were in a rut."

Richards—"Old clubs get that way. We win two pennants and we get in a rut."

Galvin—"You have to hustle to beat clubs like this one. They are bearing down all the time."

Luby—"If that Tabor had come up with that ball Mauldin hit he couldn't have made it tough for us—unless he executed a triple play."

Mauldin—"Did you know that guy had touched third before he threw?"

Chatham—"I didn't. Gee, if he had handled it perfectly he could have had a triple play sure. I guess we'd have gone into the tenth."

(Doc Prothro, the Memphis manager, came by with his tall, strapping son who is quite an athlete on the Riverside football team, near Gainesville. The boy was down to see his father. He is three inches taller and weighs about 180.)

Chatham—"Oh, Dec. Is that your boy?"

Prothro—"Yeah, that's him."

Chatham—"You'd better look out. He might spank you for losing that game."

(The umpires came out. Richards had juggled a ball in the eighth, letting a man get safe at first.)

Richards—"Hey, Bulldog!" Umpire Williams looked around. "Don't you know my trick catch when you see it?" (Williams grinned and went on.)

Chatham—"Well, it's time to get out there. Let's go! No! No! Wait a minute! I left my glove in the clubhouse."

The players roared and waited until the great little shortstop dashed back to get his glove. And then out they went to the roar of the crowd in the stands.

LEONARD—AND SPIRIT.

Big Dutch Leonard, a great fellow and a great pitcher, won his fourth start yesterday.

Given a little luck and the same spirit of play behind him, he will win 25 games this year. It's a mystery why the Cardinals, needing pitchers as they do, were willing to sell him. But it is a lot of Atlanta luck they let him go. And Leonard, with his accustomed loyalty, is pitching his best for the Crackers to get a chance to go back up.

The Atlanta team, like any team with two pennants in two years, started the season in something of an over-confident mood. But they are fighting now. And Paul Richards is playing a great game at first and Jim Galvin is catching every game without rest. It's a fine ball club and one which will be a factor in the race all the way.

THE SUFFERING DENTIST.

He sat just back of home plate at yesterday's games in which the Crackers and the Travelers were playing.

His left jaw was swollen. He had an old muffler wrapped about it to keep out the wintry wind which blew up from New Orleans.

Not until the fifth inning did he have anything to say. In the fifth, with Dutch Leonard on second, Kola Sharp took a bunt and threw to first. He could have thrown out Leonard by 80 feet if Leonard, seeing the play, did not even start. It looked like a sure force out at third.

Out of the Traveler dug-out popped Doc Prothro, the tooth-doctoring manager.

His face was red. He was suffering acutely.

The man with the swollen jaw sat up and yelled.

"Just what I came for," he said, "to see a dentist suffer. Go on and suffer."

Doc Prothro continued to suffer as his team failed to get any runs. His suffering became acute in the ninth when the Crackers opened with a triple by Buster Chatham.

And when the winning run scored the man with the swollen jaw danced up and down.

"Look at him suffer," he yelled. "The only thing I wish is, it was my dentist instead of that dentist Prothro."

A fan sitting nearby was curious.

"Pal," he asked, "why is it you want to see a dentist suffer?"

"You see this jaw of mine?" said the fan. "A dentist drilled on that yesterday. I take a great pleasure in watching Doc Prothro suffer."

And he sat down to await the second game.

MONEY TAKES WINGS.

A lot of money took wings yesterday. And the shriek of agony from the boys who bet in the winter books was loud in lamentation.

Colonel E. R. Bradley withdrew Brooklyn from the Kentucky Derby.

And quite a wad of funds had been wagered on Brooklyn in the winter books. They do not take entry bets and most of the money had gone on Brooklyn rather than on Bradley's other horse, Billionaire, which will run next Saturday in the sixth race at Louisville.

All that money is now the property of the boys who make the winter books. The bettors get none of it back. That's the rule of the winter books.

Meanwhile the Derby lines draw closer. Pompon's defeat on Saturday indicate the horse can't shoulder 126 pounds and run with it a mile and a quarter.

As pointed out here more than once, the Derby is a mile and a quarter. And tests of a mile or a mile and an eighth do not mean a great deal.

Pompon's pappy, which was Pompey, was a great horse for a mile and an eighth. But he couldn't go on. Pompon may come back. But it is doubtful.

Meanwhile War Admiral, son of Man O' War, and Reaping Reward, the Mars colt, remain the favorites.

If I were a betting man, I'd get down a little friendly bet of the small variety on Howard's entry, Fencing and Sceneshifter, being trained by Earl Sande.

The Derby is rather wide open, so to speak. And it would not be surprising to see a large field go to the post next Saturday at the Downs.

Today, if one of your race hoss pals looks ill, you may put it down he had a nice sum on Brooklyn's nose. And that's all gone. Into the pockets of the bookies, those lads with the great big pockets. The winter bettors are their favorite pals.

Brooklyn Won't Run In Kentucky Derby

Billionaire To Carry Bradley Stable's Hopes as Heavily Backed Horse Is 'Out.'

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2.—(AP)—Billionaire alone will carry the hopes and the green and white colors of E. R. Bradley in the Kentucky Derby, to be run next Saturday.

That Brooklyn, who two weeks ago was better liked than Billionaire, will not compete in the Churchill Downs classic, which four times has been won by the Bradley B's, was disclosed today when the Idle Hour entourage arrived from Lexington.

News that Brooklyn was "out" spread like wildfire and Billionaire nosed Brooklyn in the Wood memorial at Jamaica.

It was learned Brooklyn, bay son of Blue Larkspur, "went to pieces" after his disappointing showing last week in the Bluegrass stakes at Keeneland, which was won by Fencing, one of Maxwell Howard's two Derby eligibles. Billionaire nosed Brooklyn for the favorite, in the Wood memorial at Jamaica.

That was the second setback for the two Idle Hour star three-year-olds at Keeneland. The week before, they bowed to Grey Gold in a purse race. Billionaire again beat his stablemate.

AT LEAST THIRD.

Brooklyn has been rated no worse than third in the winter books and earlier in the season was even better liked.

Pompon's failure brought varied comment along the back stretch at the Downs during early morning workouts. There were "I told you so's" from the hardboots who long have maintained the bay son of Pompey couldn't go the withering mile and a quarter Ditch.

Mauldin and Lawson, tonight's featured performers, are expected to put on one of the fastest matches of the year. As far as Mauldin is concerned, it's a question of how much he can get away with against Lawson, who is a rugged customer.

In the one-hour match, Eddie Elzea, the Danish demon, and Mike Cassidy, the fighting Irishman from Omaha, are matched.

Elzea, former race driver who has competed at Lakewood, does not anticipate any spills on the night.

Although Pompon's Wood Memorial exhibition boosted the stock of War Admiral, son of Man o' War, and Milky Way Farms Reaping Reward, as the "horses to beat" in the Derby, Pompon by no means was dropped entirely as a threat. His speed is always a factor, pointed out by Earl Sande, trainer of Fencing and Sceneshifter, the latter more or less a dark horse.

Whether Case Ace, who yesterday defeated five other Derby eligibles in capturing a seven-furlong purse event at the Downs, assured himself of a starting position in the Derby, along with Reaping Reward or Military was still a problem confronting Trainer Bob McGarvey. He indicated, however, only two of Mrs. E. J. Wilson, a lady of 96 years of age, as the first place.

One of the most colorful matches of the card is the opener which brings together Sammy Miller, the tough Assyrian, and Tony Papalino, the lithian Italian.

Tonight's show begins at 8:30. Reserved seat tickets may be obtained by calling Main 2539.

Dark Crackers Play Montgomery Today

The Black Crackers, owned by M. Schaefer, white theater owner, returning from Augusta Sunday morning, where they handed the torch-heralded Augustus Giants two defeats, will open a two-game series this afternoon at Ponce de Leon park, with the strong Montgomery club of Montgomery, Ala.

The game will start at 4 o'clock.

Meanwhile, Three D's farm's candidate, turned in the best workout today, breezing a mile in 1:40.

War Admiral breezed a mile in 1:42 and then went on to do an additional eighth in 1:55 1-5. Military was clocked in 1:01 for five-eighths of a mile and Miss Mary Hirsch's No Sir was timed in 1:49 1-5 for the mile.

Meanwhile, as the pulse of the Derby quickened with the opening of the Derby festival, leading up to the 63rd running of America's greatest turf race, rain continued to fall. It has been dreary weather here for more than a week.

The town of Chicopee, Georgia, Saturday entertained a great crowd at its opening game with the Buford Sugar Hill team, by winning the game and with a great program. Chief feature was the pitching of the first ball by "Grandma" E. J. Wilson, 96 years old, who has grown up with baseball. She and the game are almost exactly the same age. Her daughter, Mrs. W. J. Hendricks, is shown acting as umpire. At the right is the ice-sitting contest. Left to right are James Lee, Tom Carpenter and Fletcher Whitmire, who tied in the contest. Below is Buddy Rogers, who won the peanut pushing contest, showing how he did it.

The First 'Ice-Sitter' Sat 26 Hours--and Lost

He Had a Fever and Was Disqualified; Chicopee Wins for Originality.

By RALPH MCGILL.

One of the stunts at the town of Chicopee on Saturday last, as the baseball season opened, was an ice-sitting contest.

You may peer at the lads in the picture above, who were sitting on a cake of ice eating ice cream. They stuck it out for quite a while. But only Fletcher Whitmire, at the extreme right, seems to be suffering. Observe the look of pain on his face.

Lest the boys think they are good, they might be told that their record does not compare with the official ice-sitting contest.

Didn't know they had one?

Yes, sir! At the White City casino, Chicago, Ill., in July of 1933, Gus Simmons sat on a cake of ice for 26 hours.

HAD THEN LOST.

They disqualified him at the end of that time because, of all things, he was running a fever. He was too hot to sit on ice.

No baseball story of the year had more national circulation than the one announced exclusively by the Constitution of the appearance of Mrs. E. J. Wilson, a lady of 96 years of age, as the first place.

The dual victory of yesterday represented a clean sweep of the three-game series for the Crackers over the league-leading Travelers who came here with a record of eight straight victories.

The only record the Travelers took away to Nashville with them was for errorless games. They added three more to their record of seven straight they had when they arrived in our fair village.

Atlanta took Little Rock's pitch apart in the three games. The Crackers got 11 hits behind Jim Lindsey's four-hit pitching in the first game. They got 11 more yesterday in support of Emil Leonard's six-hit pitching the first game of the double-header. And when they came right back in the nightcap with 11 more hits in back of Beckman and Durham's five-hit pitching.

CLUTCH HITTING.

Pitching and clutch hitting was the answer to the Crackers' return to form. They helped Little Rock score with errors and then hit themselves ahead.

With the exception of Beckman, Cracker pitching in the series was exceptionally good. And Bobby Durham's relief work took care of that.

The Crackers departed late yesterday afternoon for New Orleans.

They'll play their first night game tonight. Jim Trelax, who had a great strikeout record in the Piedmont league last year, will pitch the opening game, Manager Moore said.

The club will be gone for two weeks. They'll play three games in New Orleans, three in Birmingham, five in Little Rock and three in Memphis. The long trip will test the defending champions in all departments.

Getting back to the opening game yesterday, the Crackers spotted Little Rock a run on an error in the second and took the lead in the fifth.

In the second, Buster Chatham

Durham Stops Pebbles After Relieving Beckman in Nightcap; Atlanta Goes on Road.

By JACK TROY.

Those climbing Crackers gave themselves a rousing send-off on their two-week-long road trip yesterday by taking both ends of a double-header from the Little Rock Travelers, 3 to 2 and 6 to 3.

Emil (Dutch) Leonard, pitching the opener, held the Travelers to six hits and helped win his own game by starting a two-run rally in the fifth. Leonard belted a double to center. It was his fourth straight victory of the season.

Bobby Durham came to Bill Beckman's rescue in the second game and saved the day for the Crackers. Beckman had a four-run lead in the fourth when the Travelers solved his delivery.

Durham entered the game with two runners on the bases, one out and A. Graham, utility infielder, up as a pinch-hitter for Sheetz, who had relieved Emerson Dickman in the third. Durham, aided by Emil Mailho's great shoe-string

GERALD WALKER STARS AS TIGERS BEAT WHITE SOX

Gehrig Hits Homer, But Red Sox Clip Yanks Before 52,150.

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP)—Before the largest crowd of the young season, 52,150, Lou Gehrig snapped out of his homer-hitting slump today, but his first round-trip clout of the campaign wasn't enough to save the Yankees from a 5-to-4 clouting at the hands of the Boston Red Sox.

Errors at crucial moments by Frank Crosetti and Johnny Brocas, and a couple of timely extra-base hits by Jimmy Foxx and Rookie Bobbie Doerr put the game on ice for the Red Sox, giving Foothsie Mac the best of a pitching duel with Brocas.

Brocas's error on Foxx's easy tap in the ninth allowed Marcum to score with the winning run. In the sixth, Crosetti fumbled Pinky Higgins's bouncer, and after Fabian Gaffske singled, Doerr cashed in on the misplay by belting a two-bagger to send two runs over.

The Detroit Tigers rode into first place ahead of the losing Yanks as they defeated the Chicago White Sox, 6 to 5, and clinched a three-game series. The Tigers pounded three Chicago pitchers, Kennedy, Rigney and Lee, for 11 hits. Gerald Walker, Detroit's top hitter, got his third home run of the season in the seventh. He also got two singles.

Singles by Blugee Chapman and Lewis and doubles by Kuhel and Stone, coupled with two bases on balls and an outfield error, gave Washington five runs in the ninth and a 10-to-7 victory over the Athletics at Philly. Ed Smith and Herman Fink were the victims of the belated uprising.

Cleveland and St. Louis were rained out.

COUNCIL BODY ROW EXPECTED ON PAY AT SESSION TODAY

Dispute To Hinge on Adoption of Mayor's Plan or Full Restoration.

A battle over Mayor Hart's compromise salary restoration plan is expected when city council's finance committee meets at 10 o'clock this morning in the Mayor's office.

The committee is expected to make recommendations for allocation of $846,000 new revenue, but the major fight is due on the Mayor's salary restoration plan of 5 per cent May 1 to employees making $100 or less per month and 5 per cent to those making more than that amount on July 1.

The alternate plan would restore full basic salaries as of June 1.

It was understood several council members object to the compromise plan, and will lead the fight against it today.

The argument over the compromise plan reached an anti-climax Saturday morning when it prevented a scheduled meeting of the finance committee.

After the finance committee

Sealed bids, in duplicate, will be received until 11:00 o'clock, M. T. May 11, 1937, at the office of the engineer, 100 Peachtree Street, furnishing all labor and materials and performing all work of dredging approximately 100,000 cubic yards of earth, including dredging and overwidening from Gulfport Ship Channel, Harrison County, Mississippi. Further information on application.

Y., April 21st, 1937.—THIS IS TO NOTIFY THE PUBLIC that the Office of London & Provincial Marine & General Insurance Company, Ltd., of London, England, has withdrawn from the business of underwriting the Colossal Lines of Insurance in the State of Georgia. The said company has re-insured in The Yorkshire Insurance Company, Ltd., of London, and has satisfied and paid all losses and claims of its policyholders therein. It is further advised that it will make application to Hon. W. B. Harrison, Insurance Commissioner of the State of Georgia, to have the bonds deposited by the State Treasury the bonds deposited by the above-named company in the said Trust Fund removed from the fund under the protection of Georgia policyholders. The LONDON & PROVINCIAL MARINE & GENERAL INSURANCE CO., LTD., By H. F. ELLEN, U. S. Mgr.

Saturday failed to act on the budget commission's anticipations, the Mayor called the meeting for today.

If the committee agrees on a tentative sheet then, council will consider the new money at the afternoon session.

It was also understood a suit, probably in the form of a mandamus, will be filed either today or tomorrow by Fireman Frank G. McElroy, member of the executive board of the firemen's union, to force full payment of his basic salary.

However, action in the matter depends upon council's action this afternoon.
